Seeing double?

With their leathery skin, puffed-up puckers and over-bleached locks, Lindsay Lohan and Donatella Versace could have passed for twin sisters at Monday night's Whitney Museum gala on the Upper East Side.

Too bad for Lohan, who, at 23, is 31 years younger than Versace.

The "Mean Girls" diva looks as if the only sleep she's been getting is in a tanning bed. And it seems she's been flexing the plastic -- surgery, that is!

"Her lips could have been plumped with a filler, her chin sticks out slightly more at the tip, which would result from filler or a small implant," said Dr. Robert Schwarcz, a Park Avenue cosmetic surgeon. "Her cheeks are fuller and rounder, either achieved by a filler injected or malar implants."

Among starlets, plumped-up lips are as common as capped teeth, but cheek implants?

"She may have had cheek augmentation," agreed Upper East Side dermatologic surgeon Dr. Ariel Ostad, "which isn't common for a 23-year-old."
